

Magnus Carlsen looks on as Peter Heine Nielsen (who has been his second before) struggles as black in a Queen's Gambit Accepted against the talented Mamedyarov. In the background Radjabov plays board 2 for the Azerbaijan team against Denmark.

The English Women's team led by Jovanka Houska suffered badly at the beginning but rebounded well to finish respectably. Here they can be seen playing against Austria.

When you look at the names of the English women's team Houska, Ciuksyte, Lauterbach, Chevannes and Grigoryan-Lyell it's good to know that we don't have to rely on foreigners coming to our country to support the national team!!

Levon Aronian, either he doesn't realize it's his move, or he's keeping one eye open for the return of Danny Gormally!

The Ukraine team, ready and waiting for England in the last round, which took place in the morning. Not surprisingly the English team is still climbing out of bed! Ukraine won 2.5-1.5 with Adams beating Ivanchuk on top board.

Monica Sepp, more of a hit off the board than on the board, leads the Swiss women.
